

International Association for Falconry EDUCATION SURVEY

“Education in its general sense is a form of learning in which the knowledge, skills and habits of a group of people are transferred from one generation to the next through teaching, training, or research.”

The IAF would like to expand and share your falconry experiences and knowledge to children and future generations. Our goal is to give young people opportunities to learn about falconry based on facts without any misinformation.

Falconers all over the world educate about the art of falconry in schools and kindergarten. They meet with the public to share the beauty of their birds of prey.

With your help and participation in this survey we will be able to gather information worldwide to create a guide and website for anyone interested in education and for future generations!

Please complete this survey!

International Association for Falconry and Conservation of Birds of Prey

IAF is an accredited NGO providing advisory services to UNESCO Intangible Cultural Heritage Committee (NGO-90006) and an accredited member of IUCN International Union for Conservation of Nature.

